AI coding workshops for students · Media Release

Media release

During the workshop we sometimes photograph or record short video of the room: teams presenting their demos, the projected bot arena, students at work. Schools and programs use these to show families what happened, and we use them to show other schools what the workshop looks like.

Plainly: this form is optional, and saying no changes nothing about your student's day. Our default photography is of screens and the room, not faces. We never publish a student's full name with their image, and we never use student images in paid advertising.

Your choice

- ☐ Yes, school and Jordan & Borden. My student may appear in photos and video from the session, usable by the school/program and by Jordan & Borden on its website and social media, first name only or no name.

☐ School only. My student may appear in the school or program's own photos and communications, but not in Jordan & Borden's materials.

☐ No photography. Please keep my student out of photos and video entirely. We will seat them accordingly; participation is unaffected.

Details that stay true regardless of choice

- Consent can be withdrawn at any time by emailing walterjordan@jordanborden.com; we will remove the image from anything we control.
- No images are sold or licensed to third parties, ever.
- This release covers the named session only, not future events.
